Saturday, August 2, 2014 - 8:00am Purdue University Track West Lafayette, IN

The 34th annual IJA World Juggling Championships were held at the Purdue University track in West Lafayette, Indiana. The meet was highlighted by a stunning five world record performances, all by women.

Stars of the meet were Delaney Bayles, who set world records in the 100 meter 5 ball, 400 meter 5 ball and 100 meter 7 ball events, and Gabrielle Foran who set world records in the 800 meter 3 ball and 1600 meter 3 ball events. In addition, Gabrielle narrowly missed a third world record in the 400 meter 3 ball event.

Gabrielle won every gold medal in the women's competition as they also teamed up along with Heather Marriott and Chloe Hirschowitz to take the 4 x 100 meter relay.

On the men's side, Nicholas Thomas set an IJA Championship record (but not a world record) in the 400 meter 5 ball event. Nicholas also won the 100 meter 7 ball event and thus was the only multiple gold medal winner in the individual men's events.

Promote the IJA! by Don Lewis

Juggling events are great places to meet other jugglers - duh. They are also a great place to meet jugglers who have never heard of the IJA.

Sure, the IJA might come up in conversation, and the person you are talking to might actually intend to check out the IJA web site when they get home. But the odds are good that they'll forget all about it, or at least forget the URL.

Use the IJA business card in the members resources section of the IJA website. You can print a page and hand out IJA cards to interested people. Keep a few in your prop bag.

Also in the resources section, you'll find IJA certificates to give to new jugglers that you have trained.

Rendering Assistance to Jugglers since 1947

Hello jugglers, Nathan Wakefield here. Some of you may have read my eJuggle articles in the past and some of you may have met me at festivals over the years.

In any event, I am deeply honored to be starting my term as Chairman of the International Jugglers' Association. It is a great excitement for me to be able to give back to the IJA at this level, and I plan on dedicating myself fully to this position.

Speaking of exciting, I just got back from the 67th Annual IJA Festival in West Lafayette, IN. What an amazing time! Every IJA Festival is a unique and memorable experience, and for good reason. There are always the staple events that festival goers look forward to and expect, but there are always a few surprises that make things even more interesting. This year was no exception.

There were incredible performers from all over the world and amazing competitions. Not to mention workshops, Renegade shows, and more great events. One of the more interesting observations I had was that in the Individuals stage competitions, none of the three acts that medaled manipulated more than three objects in their acts! All three were unique and breathtaking in their own right. In an era where competitive juggling seems to be gravitating more and more towards numbers, surprises like this occasionally come along and turn your expectations upside down.

Another strong observation about this particular festival was the strong presence of the flow/spinning community. There were not one, but two poi performers in the stage shows and several hooping acts. A great deal of workshops this year were on club swinging, poi and hooping. There were two Fire Nights, for those spinners and jugglers that wanted to set the night ablaze. Not to mention that there were more people spinning in the gym than I have personally ever seen at an IJA festival. I am thrilled to see this diversity going on, and I hope to see more and more different kinds of prop manipulators coming together like this at future IJA festivals.

I would like to send a special thank you to Cody Fioreck, this year's Festival Director, for putting together such an amazing event.

Next year, the IJA goes outside of the United States to Quebec City in Canada. This festival is being put together by the Turbo418 team who are behind the annual Turbo Fest event. I've never had the pleasure of attending this particular event, but I've heard nothing but great things about the venue, city and team organizing it. Next year's IJA festival is going to be a great event. I will be sure to provide updates in this column as the festival planning unfolds.

There are also a lot of great things happening in the IJA with our various programs and member benefits. Our IRC programs continue to lead to many IJA Regional Competitions being held all over the world. The IJA's newly re-branded Youth Juggling Academy (YJA) (formerly the Youth Education Program, or YEP) continues to grow. And then there's all the original content that is pouring into eJuggle and our YouTube channel. Now is definitely a really fun time to be involved with the IJA!

On that note, with all of the great programs and festivals that the IJA puts on, it can be easy to forget about all the hard work that goes on behind the scene. Our Board of Directors and Officers are all volunteers, dedicated to donating their time and energy to keeping the IJA functioning efficiently. If you've ever wanted to contribute to the IJA by becoming a volunteer officer, check out our officer job descriptions at:

juggle.org/business/jobdescriptions.php and submit a letter of interest to: ijaboard@juggle.org.

My predecessor Erin Stephens did a lot of great things with the IJA over the last year as Chair, and she put the wheels in motion for a lot of our upcoming projects. I would like to thank Erin for her extreme dedication and all the hard work she has put into the IJA. It is my goal to continue this progress and help make the IJA a great place for all jugglers. If you have any questions or comments, feel free to reach out to the appropriate person on our contacts page (www.juggle.org/business/contacts.php), or contact me directly at wakefield@juggle.org. Here is looking towards a great juggling future!

Juggle on,
Nathan Wakefield
IJA Chairman

Call for IJA Officers

Until September 15, the IJA Board of Directors will be accepting "Letters of Interest" (via email) from people desiring to fill one of the IJA volunteer officer positions. The positions have a variety of focuses and require a minimum of a one year commitment. Officers help to direct the activity of the organization and bring fresh and dynamic ideas to the Board regarding their particular area of focus.

Below is a list of IJA officers and a link to the web page of job descriptions. Look them over. And if you have an idea for a useful new position to add, let us know your thoughts.

If you would like to submit a letter of interest for any of the positions, please include the following:

- Your name.
- Position you are interested in.
- Qualifications you have for the position.
- Ideas or strategies you plan to enact while serving as an officer.

Submit your letter no later than September 15, by emailing it to: board@juggle.org.

If you are currently one of these IJA officers, please let the Board know by email to the above address whether you're interested in continuing in your role. Thanks.

The IJA Board will select the officer they think best fits each position. Whether or not you are selected as an official IJA Officer, the Board is excited to find a good fit for you as a volunteer within the organization.

If you have any questions, please feel free to contact Board Chair Nathan Wakefield at: wakefield@juggle.org.

Why "Letters of Interest"? by Don Lewis

Unlike IJA Directors who are elected, IJA officers are volunteers who are appointed by the IJA Board. The reality usually is that there are generally just a few volunteers that regularly occupy these positions. In some ways, that is good because it provides a form of long term continuity.

In other ways it is not so good because other members who would like to get involved assume that they have no chance of scoring an interesting position. That makes it difficult for the Board members to know who else might be interested.

A lot of public Boards use this approach as a "best practice" to assure that the organization is staying up to date with the resources available to it.

Here is an example. The IJA has been publishing an eNewsletter on a monthly basis for more than seven years, currently as a pdf file attached to an email. In the past, the IJA has had printed newsletters sent by mail or as an insert to a printed magazine. Technology evolves. The IJA now has an online magazine that has more content than we were ever able to publish in print, and new articles are added more often than in any magazines we published. We don't actually need two repositories of content, but we do want to communicate regularly with members. There are a variety of ways to communicate that are more efficient than mailing pdf files and that can facilitate outreach beyond existing IJA members.

It is a good bet that there are IJA members out there that are skilled in these new technologies and would really like to help pull the IJA forward.

Not everyone wants a job for life, so don't worry that you'll be insulting someone who has been doing a job "forever". Even if you don't want the responsibility of an official position, you might want to help move a project to the next level. Show some interest. We're eager to know your ideas.

Calling All Graphic Designers: Help Design the Future of the IJA!

The IJA is recruiting the team that will be moving the Association to an all-new website in the next few months. By early spring next year, the IJA will have a new state-of-the-art website to better serve our members and also provide huge new labor-saving features for our hard-working volunteer staff.

Part of the project will be a once-in-a-generation opportunity to create a completely new visual identity for the Association: a new logo, new color palettes, new typography — the works!

It's the perfect chance to start fresh with the IJA's branding and "look," and we're reaching out to graphic designers in the juggling community to make it happen. The IJA is looking for graphic designers with experience in creating an organization's complete visual identity.

We want to select and hire an experienced graphic designer for the project who can collaborate with the IJA Board and the website team to create all the elements needed for the project:

- A new IJA logo in a variety of styles, targeted to online, print and merchandising
- A new IJA color palette for online and print that references and complements the new logo colors and styles
- Specify a set of IJA fonts and a typography guide for online, print and merchandising
- A visual identity guide that specifies how to use all the new elements online, in print and in product branding and merchandising

The designer will be working as a full partner with the IJA Board and website team to specify the elements and deliverables needed, specify the timeline and quality requirements for the deliverables, and be able to adhere to the team's overall implementation schedule.

If you're interested in being considered for this paid graphic design project, please write to design@juggle.org and include:

- A resume or CV highlighting your experience and training in graphic design
- A list of your recent graphic design clients and the work you created for them, along with the contacts at those clients that we can call for references
- A link to your online portfolio
- Your compensation expectations for this short-term, limited-scope effort for the IJA

Submissions should be received by September 15.

Thanks for your interest! We hope you can help create the future of IJA!

Can You Lend a Hand with the New IJA Website Project?

You'll read elsewhere in this issue of the eNewsletter that the IJA is seeking graphic designers to create an all-new look for the Association. That effort is part of a really ambitious and transformative project that's about to begin at the IJA: our new website!

Over the past three years, IJA volunteers have been working to move the Association to an all-new, modern, fully-featured and integrated online system, known as an Association Management System (AMS).

Now, thanks to the generous support of an anonymous donor (who wishes to go by the name Unna Med), we're ready to get started! The project kicks off October 15 and is fully funded for three years through the very kind support of the donor.

The system we're moving to is called YourMembership, and you can read all about it here. It's an incredibly comprehensive and highly-developed system, used by thousands of other associations, big and small. It will give the IJA, for the first time, a complete suite of modern, integrated, Web-based tools to manage and grow the Association, reduce a huge amount of work for our volunteer staff and Board, and bring lots of great new benefits to our members.

An effort this big needs a small, dedicated, highly-qualified team to achieve the goals we have set for the project. We have our team leaders in place, so now we need to recruit a small handful of IJA members who are willing to contribute their brainpower and effort to complete the project.

Specifically, we're looking for IJA members who can volunteer their skills in these areas:

- Content Migration: We'll move a fair amount of current, important textual information from the existing IJA website to the new system. Some of this migration will be done by automation, but we expect some of it will require a manual copy-paste-reformat process from our old site to the new system. This requires careful, detail-minded work but can be done in small bites over a few months.
- Data Scrubbing: Moving our existing membership database onto the new system will be done by the system vendor, but we want to take this opportunity to "clean up" and validate our membership database. Volunteers for this effort will help out by combing through the imported database and insuring the data in the new system is accurate, complete and consistent.
- Quality Assurance: We want to make sure the new system is working as designed and provides a quality experience for our members, so we'll need help testing the functionality and proofreading pages on the new system.

Volunteers for this project will need to have these qualifications:

- Online fluency from many years of experience using the Internet, various web browsers, search engines, email clients, FTP and other common online tools
- A modern Windows PC and/or Mac running the latest version of the respective operating system, and installed current versions of the popular web browsers for each OS (Safari, Firefox and Google Chrome on Mac, Firefox, Google Chrome and Internet Explorer on Windows)
- iOS and Android tablet and mobile devices will also be tested, so if you have any of those as well, it's a plus (iPhone, Android phone, iPad, Android tablet, etc.)
- A reliable high-speed Internet connection in your home in order to access the system and complete the required tasks efficiently
- Ability to participate in Skype or toll-free conference call meetings with team members and system vendor staff
- Up to 20 hours per week to devote to the project for three to six months

If you're interested in helping with this very exciting and interesting project, please write us at ams@juggle.org. In your email, tell us a little about yourself, your experience in the areas listed above, why you'd like to help with the project, and the aspects of the project where you think you can make the biggest contributions.

Responses should be received by September 15.

Thanks for your interest! We hope you can help create the future of IJA!

2015 IJA Festival Quebec City, Quebec, Canada, July 20 - 26, 2015

The IJA's summer festival is going International again. The festival will be in Quebec City, the capital region of the Province of Québec. The IJA has visited Canada twice before. Once at McGill University in 1992, and more recently in 2000 at the University of Québec at Montreal. Now we will be down the river from Montreal in historic Quebec City. It can be a bit confusing since the name of the city is the same as the name of the province.

A lot of people at the festival were thrilled to learn that our festival would be back in Quebec, but they automatically thought that meant Montreal again. No, Quebec City is an easy three hour drive from Montreal by car, bus, or train, and is served by its own international airport.

Quebec is a fascinating old city that is steeped in history and elegance. There is so much to do and see in the city that non juggling family members will be begging to be part of the trip. The city is a tourist destination for both North Americans and Europeans, and it knows how to receive visitors in style. There are many popular public festivals each summer, and Quebec has the infrastructure to showcase them all. Some events will potentially take place on the outdoor public stages to lure the general public into our orbit. The busking competition will play to crowds like we've never seen before.

Quebec is a French speaking province, but bilingualism is the norm in major cities like Quebec and Montreal. You will not have difficulty making yourself understood or finding your way around. At the moment, the monetary exchange rate favors the American dollar so that works in favor of traveling to Quebec as well.

Our festival is being hosted by the Turbo418 team who have been running the wildly popular TurboFest festival for nearly ten years. It is going to be quite a party. Don't miss it.

Watch the promotional video above to get a taste for what is to come. This might just be our best festival ever!

Over the next months, we will be discussing things like local attractions, and economical travel strategies. Watch the eNewsletter for updates.

What to do with too many T-shirts, by Don Lewis

Every festival and activity seems to have its own "must have" T-shirt. What every home must then have is a place to put all those T-shirts. Sure you wear some of them for a while, but most of them are good for short term bragging rights and long term gathering of dust in piles.

If you have kept the shirt, then there is probably at least one good memory attached to it. Or, perhaps you just can't bear to throw anything out. I'll bet you have a stack of them somewhere.

If the idea of discarding a perfectly good juggling T-shirt gives you an unpleasantly cold chill, consider recycling.

Jen Jackman was exasperated with my toppling stack of almost never worn T-shirts and decided to take action. She cut them up! And then she sewed them into lightweight quilts. It is a great solution. All those good memories stitched together in one place, and actually being used.

Thanks, Jen

Green Club Promotional Cards, by Don Lewis

I have been writing about Green Clubs and talking about Green Clubs for what seems like years now. I'm still a bit surprised when people see a box of them at a juggling festival and have no idea what they are all about.

At a festival, there are usually two types of people who are curious enough to check out the the box of Green Clubs that is set out for people to try.

People who do not juggle at all, and are only at the event to chaperone a young juggler, wander around the juggling space and are grateful for anything to look at. They usually like the idea and would pick up a set of plans if there was a stack of them, and maybe even make a set.

Actual jugglers who have never seen a Green Club before usually approach them somewhat derisively. This is always fun to watch because of the confused expression that results from trying them and discovering that they are really good.

At Winston-Salem, two guys each grabbed a handful late at night, and suddenly there were ten clubs being passed for a good long run.

They are light, well balanced, nearly indestructible and have a flexible handle that is easy on the hands. They are great for practicing when you want to spare your good clubs.

They are also great for giving away. I often encounter good beginners who are ready to move on from balls, but cannot imagine finding the cash for a good set of clubs. They are ideal candidates for Green Clubs.

Would you like to help spread the word about this great recycling project? Just print out a page of the IJA's Green Club promo cards and hand them out to jugglers who need a good basic club to get started.

New Wes Peden video 'Throw Joy' available at eJuggle for IJA members only!

eJuggle has a new video by Wes Peden for IJA members only. Here is how Wes describes it:

"With the extras, it's 1 hour and 25 minute of the best juggling I've ever made. I used 100% of my technique and 100% of my creativity to try and make this video the best juggling anyone's ever seen! Definitely the most work I've ever put into anything and I would love people that are passionate enough about juggling to join the IJA to see it! I've gotten a huge response from the juggling community about the film so I hope your members would also love to be able to see it!"

Having a Juggling Festival? List it here!

If you're organizing a juggling festival (or if you simply know of a juggling fest) and you want to advertise it in the IJA eNewsletter, just drop a note to eNewsletter editor Don Lewis enews@juggle.org. Such listings are free.

The eNewsletter generally comes out near the end of each month. Your festival can be listed for a few months, and you don't have to be an IJA affiliate to have a fest listed. Hey, jugglers want to know about juggling fests. Help them out and get more jugglers to your fest at the same time.
